COURSE TITLE

Chinese Law

TEACHING PERIOD

2nd term

SCIENTIFIC AREA

Comparative Private Law

LANGUAGE USED TO TEACH

English

COURSE SUMMARY

The course introduces the study of contemporary China's legal system, with particular attention to civil law and the resolution of disputes. It is divided into 3 parts, dedicated to: a) The relationship among law, language, culture, tradition and ideology; b) PRC's legal history: from the repeal of KMT codes to the creation of socialist system of laws with Chinese characteristics; c) The legal profession, the judicial system and the resolution of disputes.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Basic knowledge of the most important contemporary legal systems and of the fundamental terms and concepts of constitutional law and private law (eg form of government, form of state, constitutional justice, contract, property, marriage). There are no prerequisites for this teaching, but the students could follow it more profitably having already passed (or at least followed) the course of comparative law. The teacher may indicate short supplementary reading to the students who have not acquired this knowledge by attending such a course. No prior knowledge of Chinese history and culture is required.
